My password for my halo2 original disk has gone haywire and I need to get it back so I can play it. Here are the details: I bought the game at a local GameStop. My password was the in-game default password when you first loaded the disk (which was  I didn't copy any of the files (not really sure where the files are stored, I just assume they're saved in memory). My disk is scratched and is a bit wet from water I spilled on it. I have a windows xp cd (I know I should probably get a new one, but I'm cheap). If anyone can help that would be amazing. I can't even log in on nintendo live. Thanks I've checked every file in the original game disk, there is no different password anywhere. I went to places where they told you to load a disk using the halo2 application, i.e. you had to re-enter your password. The halo2 I found can be downloaded from nintendolife.com, it's free. They say I need a windows XP disc, but I was able to run it under windows 7 so I was wondering if that would work in your case? Also, does halo2 (or if that's what it was) have something like the gameguard password checker in it? I thought I'd ask that before you spend a lot of time with it. Halo2 is the GameCube version, not the original disk. They can be somewhat difficult to find if you don't know what you're looking for. A lot of people here have it working without a password.
